

Based in Malton we currently we have a vacancy on our night shift.

Days - 06:00-14:00 (we are flexible on start times to suit both you and Tofoo)

Salary - £30000-£35000 depending on experience

Reporting directly to the Engineering Manager you will help to deliver the Tofoo engineering plan which involves regular planned maintenance, general repairs and machine breakdowns helping to guarantee the safety of all staff and limiting line downtime thus increasing productivity. As a team player with good communication skills you will be expected to ensure that everyone within operations is fully aware of issues that might arise and, where possible, develop and train others in how to rectify simple problems.

The key focus of this role is to be proactive - foreseeing any possible issues and dealing with these before they arise. It is important to know what good looks like with a keen eye for detail working independently without supervision.

You will be a logical thinker with several years proven engineering experience ideally gained within a food environment coupled with an engineering qualification and high levels of organisational skills.

Perks of the Job

- Upto 10% annual bonus
- Perk Box membership
- Cycle to work scheme
- Company pension
